Utility Type: electric
Company Name: Dominion Virginia Power

Comments: I agree with the burying of the electrical lines due to the fact that the tree service people that Dominion contracts with do not do their job. We have seen the tree service trucks sit on our easement and then leave without doing anything. Because they do not clear the easement, Dominion trucks must come through our driveway to fix the power lines. I would also agree that by burying the lines, this would create more jobs as well. As far as who should have their lines buried first, well that should be the people that are without power the longest. People with only two or three on a line. My neighbors and I were the last people to get power after the hurricane. We need to start somewhere. My neighbors and I have a real problem when there is a small thunderstorm and our power will be out for three days. We think this is crazy. Lets get with the times and keep the power on. Thank you.
